Joshua Slocum's and Lisa Carlson's book, Final Rights: Reclaiming the American Way of Death, is one part in-depth expose of all things deplorable and funeral, and two-parts step by step manual detailing the different states' laws regulating this shadowy industry, which in some instances are so ill-conceived and ripe for exploitation as to verge on parody.

Final Rights: Reclaiming the American Way of Death ...

Jessica Mitford's classic exposé, The American Way of Death, drew back the curtain on the funeral industry's excess. Final Rights investigates the $15-billion funeral and burial industry in 2011, exposing consumer abuse, financial exploitation of the bereaved, and how government regulators can't be counted on to protect the grieving.

Final Rights: Reclaiming the American Way of Death

Final Rights: Reclaiming the American Way of Death by Joshua Slocum and Lisa Carlson (2011)—Slocum—once an investigative reporter who was shocked to learn how difficult it is to apprehend information the funeral industry routinely keeps from the public it serves—is now the executive director of the Funeral Consumers Alliance. Carlson is the executive director of the Funeral Ethics ...

Final Rights: Reclaiming the American Way of Death

Final Rights takes a fresh new look at the death-care business as it exists in 2011, exposing corruption where it exists (in far too many places) while giving credit where due.

Final Rights: Reclaiming the American Way of Death. But a consumer movement is no awakening, and Americans are asserting their rights over a key part of life, just as they did in the past with the natural childbirth and hospice movements. The two most prominent leaders of that movement are the authors of this book: Joshua Slocum,...
